THIRD TAYLOR SHELLFISH SEED SALE SATURDAY

By Dedrick Allan 18/07/2008

Taylor Shellfish Farms is holding their third shellfish seed sale Saturday at their processing plant on Lynch Road. Homeowners with tideland who would like to start their own shellfish gardens and help keep Puget Sound clean in the process can purchase oyster, clam, mussel and geoduck "seed" from 8 to 11 AM. The shellfish seed sales are timed to coincide with the lowest minus tides so seed buyers can plant their tideland gardens the same day the seed is purchased. Instructions for growing your own shellfish will be available. Different species, beach slopes and bottom types require different "gardening" strategies. Taylor experts will be on hand to answer questions. Seed customers are advised to bring a cooler and moist newspaper for seed transport. Oyster seed is pre-bagged in 1000 count bags. Clam and mussel seed are scooped at the time of purchase. Geoduck are sold by the each. One more seed sale is scheduled this summer on August 30th. More information about the seed sales is available online at www.taylorshellfish.com or by contacting Seed Sale Coordinator Dave DeAndre at 360-426-6178. Email: daved@taylorshellfish.com.
